Can Do Statements

- I can talk or report about things, actions and events.

Ask your partner:

- What historical places do you know about in your city or country?
- Can people visit these places?
- Do you want to visit them? Why or why not?

Let's Explore!

Let's tag along with Sally on her last tour of the Kremlin.

* When you "tag along", you go with someone. You were not expecting to go along before this.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

Guide:

Welcome to the Kremlin Gallery. The Kremlin protected the Russian royalty. Here, long festive celebrations followed the coronation of a tsar. This was the heart of Russia and still is today.

Here is a painting of the Bolshoi Theater with its eight tall white columns. Once it was a private theater. Now anyone can go there to see our prima ballerinas dance on their pink satin toe shoes. Come into the next chamber. Look at the chandeliers made with fine clear Russian crystal. Under these lights, royalty talked and laughed and danced.

The heavy wood gilded doors open in more galleries and rooms. Walk around. Look at the chairs, tables, desks and paintings that are all part of Russia's history.

Learning Points

Rooms and Objects

When you visit old homes and palaces, guides talk about the rooms and objects in them. Here are some words you could hear:

Room or Object	Meaning
gallery	large open room often with artwork in it
chamber	a room for a particular purpose
chandelier	ornate light hanging from the ceiling
rooms	area where people lived and worked

Examples:

- There were 500 people in the Grand Hall dancing.
- The chandelier has thousands of tiny crystals hanging from it.

Learning Points

The Simple Past Tense

You use the Simple Past tense to talk about events that are finished.

Simple Past tense verbs can be regular or irregular.

Regular past tense verbs end in -ed or -ied. (worked, visited, danced, studied)

Irregular verbs have significant changes in their form. Make sure you practice these changes for the most common verbs (have > had; go > went; see > saw, etc.).

For questions in the past, you use the auxiliary did.

Did is the past form of to do.

REMEMBER: When you use the auxiliary verb in past, the principal verb is in the basic form. Do not conjugate the principal verb in questions. (e.g. Did you visit the Great Hall? Did you see the pictures of the Kremlin Gallery?)

Verb	Simple Past Tense
to dance	danced
to talk	talked
to laugh	laughed
to protect	protected
to be	was
to make	made
to think	thought

Examples:

- The guide took me to the Great Hall.
- The gold woodwork flashed in the light.
