Sally's Suitcase

Late fall in Moscow is cold.

Bring a warm coat! The Kremlin stands in the center of the city of Moscow.

It is high on a hill, beside the Moskova river. It is one of the most important historical places in the world. The original building was a fortress.

Why did they build the walls thick? These walls surrounded the fortress and protected the Russian princess. You can walk around all 1.3 miles!

Inside the Kremlin today, the tour took me into the Great Hall. The room had a polished wood floor with cream walls. Here and there were accents of deep aqua. The gilded doors, and other woodwork flashed in the light from the crystal chandeliers. The elegant space made me think of fairytales.
